Since 1920, TMEA has worked to ensure excellence in music education for all Texas students. Over 14,000 school music educators are TMEA members belonging to one of five TMEA Divisions: Band, Orchestra, Vocal, Elementary, and College.

Texas Music Educators Association (TMEA)

On behalf of its members and Texas students, TMEA carefully monitors the actions of all state decision-making bodies on issues affecting fine arts instruction in Texas. In addition to many member benefits, TMEA offers professional development opportunities for its members with Region workshops and especially with its annual Clinic/Convention. TMEA supports the future of music education by offering scholarships to music education majors and by sponsoring the Texas Future Music Educators, an organization through which high school students interested in careers in music education learn more about what to expect in their college education and future careers.

TMEA Clinic/Convention

Each year, around 30,000 attendees gather in San Antonio for the TMEA Clinic/Convention, making it one of the largest music education events in the nation. This vibrant gathering brings together music educators, students, families, visitors, and exhibitors for an unparalleled experience of professional development, performances, and networking.

TMEA Exhibit Show

Held at the Henry B. González Convention Center in San Antonio, the annual TMEA Clinic/Convention Exhibit Show features over 1,500 booths and 600 exhibiting companies. Make immediate onsite sales, build lasting customer relationships, and boost your brand's exposure.

Who should exhibit?

If your organization supports music education, we encourage you to apply to exhibit. Previous exhibitors have included instrument and accessory companies, sheet music publishers, colleges and universities, apparel and concert attire providers, fundraising organizations, group travel companies, classroom tool and technology providers, and many others serving music programs.
